

Job Posting: Indigenization Research Assistant

Duration of Contract: Sept 20 – Dec. 17, 2021

Contract: $2500

Position Overview and Responsibilities:

To work in collaboration with the Professor of Cancer Undergraduate Research Education (CURE) (BIOM 3750-1) course to assess students' overall understanding of indigenized course components and learnings. This will include the development of an evaluation tool, data collection, development of a paper, including recommendations for future course consideration.

To create cancer research awareness materials that would be meaningful for indigenous communities during National Day for Truth and Reconciliation (September 30, 2022)

This position will include a substantial and respectful consultation and collaboration with the Aboriginal Navigator at Windsor Regional Hospital and the Aboriginal Education Centre at the University of Windsor

Qualifications:

- A good understanding of research with a passion and/or interest in Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (EDI)
- Knowledge of or interest in learning about indigenous affairs and Truth and Reconciliation
- Strong written and oral communication skills
- Proven ability to work independently with a high level of initiative
- Proficiency with a variety of software packages that support virtual teams, learning, communications, and analytics, e.g., Microsoft Teams, Zoom, Qualtrics (or other survey software)
- Reliable and can meet deadlines on time
- Strong organizational and self-management skills
- Interested in collaborating with others

We are committed to meeting the employment and equity goals of the collaborating organizations with respect to federally designated groups.

Please submit a cover letter and resume before September 16, 2021 to:

Nick Philbin
philbin@uwindsor.ca
GA, BIOM 3750-1